Exeter

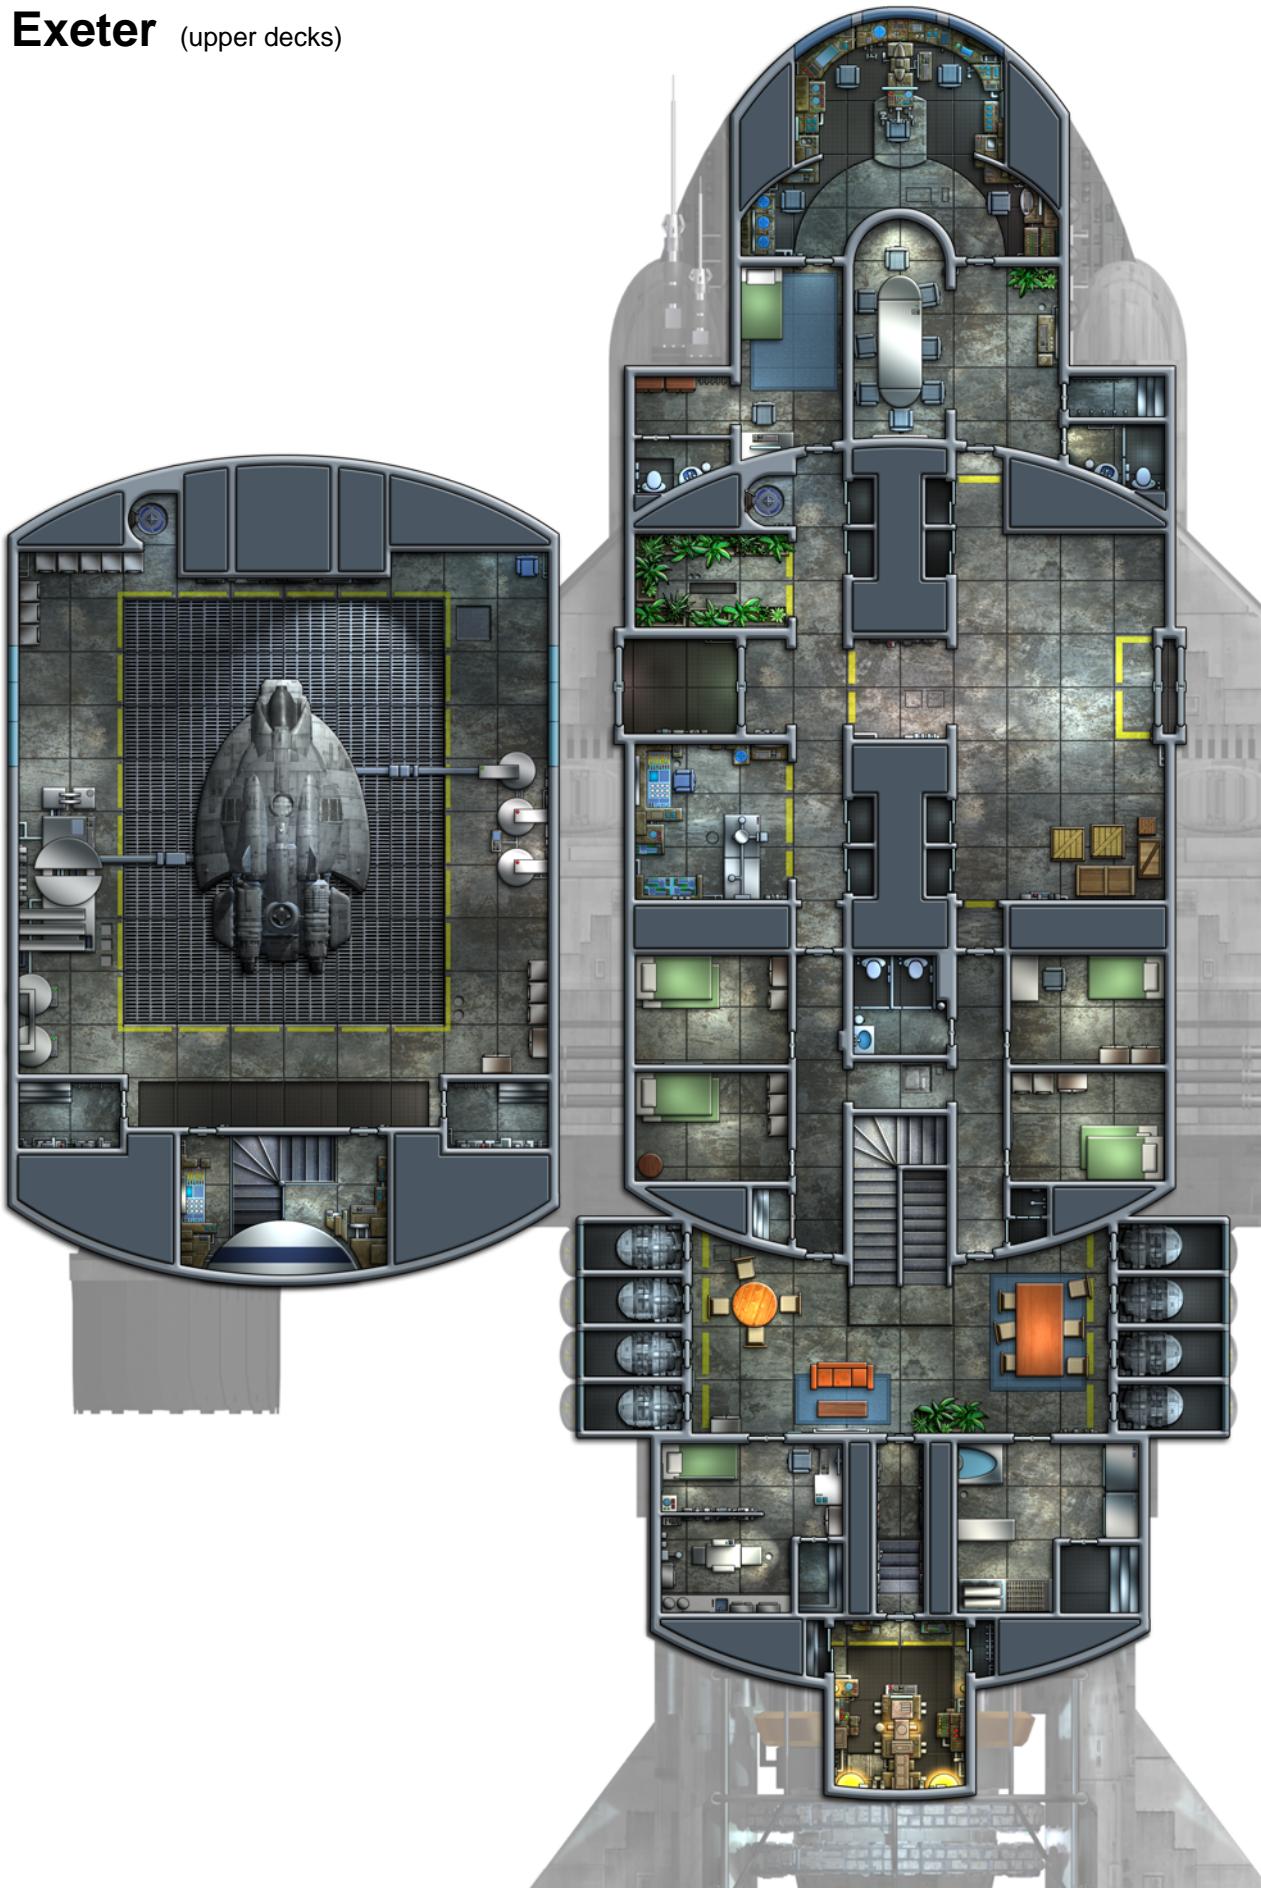

Exeter is a four level ship. The topmost level is the shuttle bay. Beneath this is the main deck where the bridge and crew areas, as well as auxiliary cargo storage and engine room, are located. Next is the passenger deck. The lowest level of the ship is the main cargo hold. An interior map of the ship's skiff is included at the end of the document.

In this document, the ship is laid out from top to bottom, front to back. Note that there is considerable overlap along the perimeter of the maps, especially the "seem" that runs down the middle of the ship. Refer to the composite maps when in doubt about how to assemble the pages. There are not separate map sections for the privateer configuration as all changes are external.

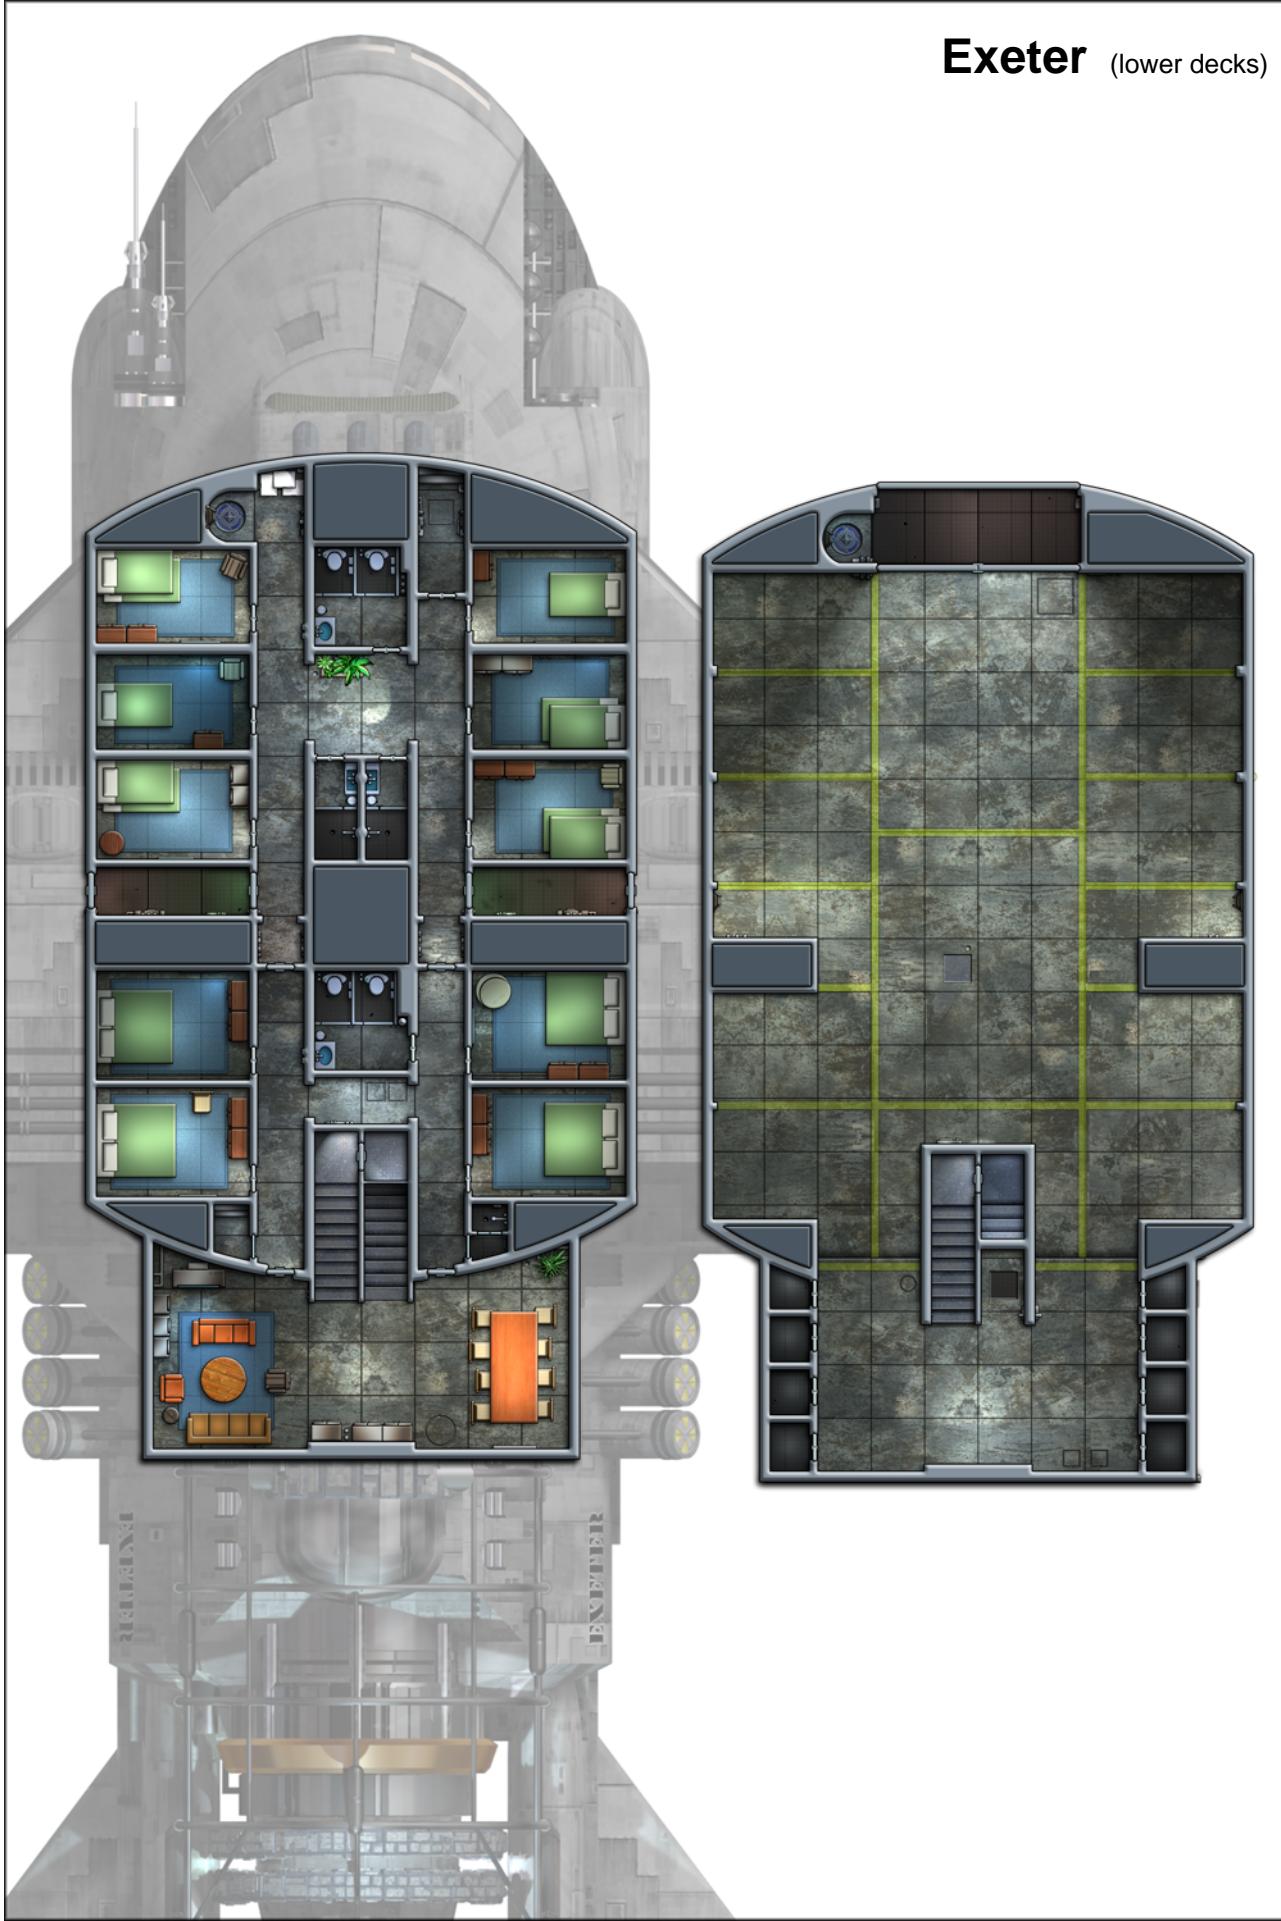

On a technical note: I apologize for not having titles on every page. Adobe was unable to correctly keep the maps "behind" the text and so I removed the titles rather than have them randomly covered up by white space. My hope is that the overlapping edges, in conjunction with the composite maps, will make it clear which page goes where once everything is printed out.
