Future Armada: Bonus Pages is copyright © 2011 Ryan Wolfe. Permission is given to print this document for personal, non-profit use.

This document contains bonus pages meant to modify existing issues of Future Armada. These pages cannot be used without the actual issue to which they pertain. Most of these additional pages were created at the request of customers – thank you for the feedback and the ideas!

The map pages are described in the order presented. Note that only color pages are provided.

Vanguard Station (2 pages)

Both pages from the station are a modification of the upper level where the brig is location. A blank map of this area is provided (for customization). The other page replaces the brig with guest quarters.

Gryphon (4 pages)

This customization of the starship Gryphon provides a group of mercenaries the option of bringing a fighter craft or two along with them on their missions (the Serena-class fighter fits very well).

The four map pages included here are optional replacements for four pages in the original Gryphon map book. These pages change the cargo hold and launch bay into fighter bays – adding large, retractable doors in the floor through which a small craft can launch and return. They are only usable while the ship is in space – though the smaller rear cargo doors are always available.

Misfortune (2 pages)

An “eXtended” version of the Ajax transport is shown, both as an exterior portrait and interior deckplan. There are no map pages for this variant as it uses only the existing pages.

This map page adds a “personnel teleportation system” to the top level of Cygnus. This device translates matter to energy and beams it through space to rematerialize at another location. It can also bring distant objects and people onto the teleportation pad. To accommodate this facility the other rooms in this area were rearranged and storage space was converted into addition system space.
