

DUNGEONS OF THE MOUNTAIN KING

WALLS

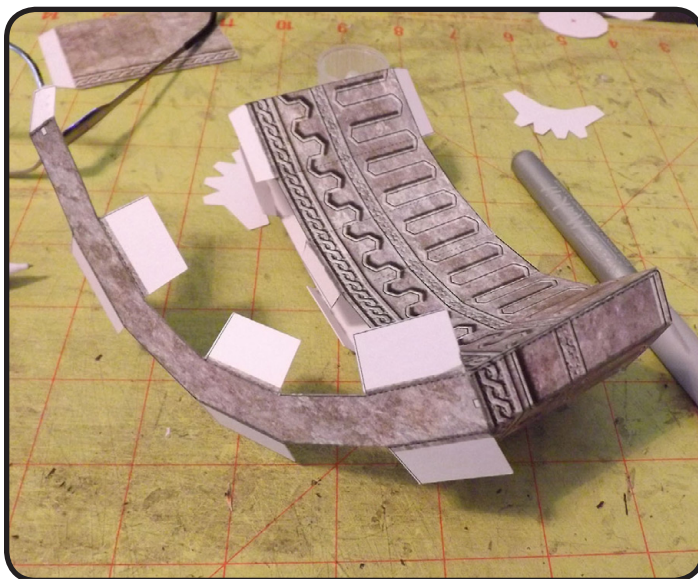

1: Whoever guessed “Cut, score and test fold” wins...

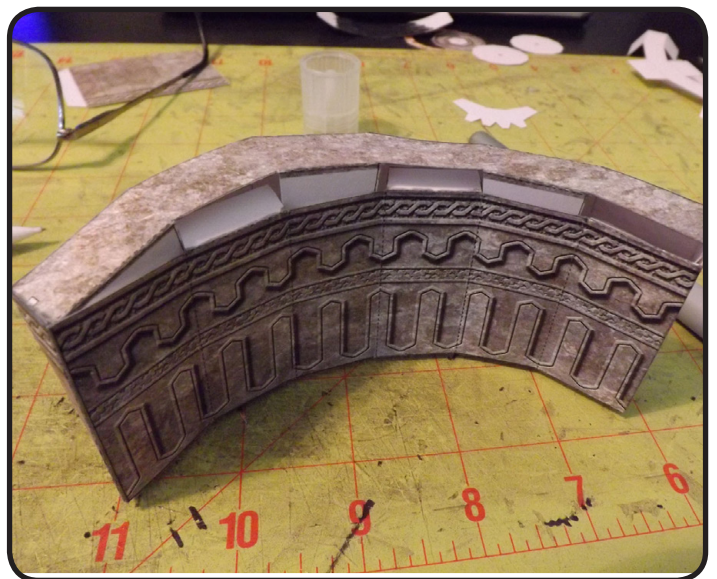

...absolutely nothing. :P

2: Bend into a curved shape and glue the ends of the two side wall pieces together.

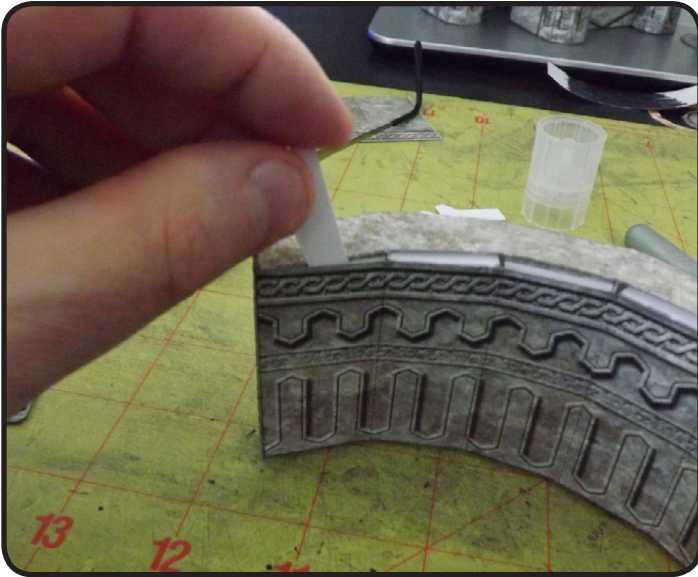

3: Glue one tab of the top piece as shown. Once dry, fold and glue into place.

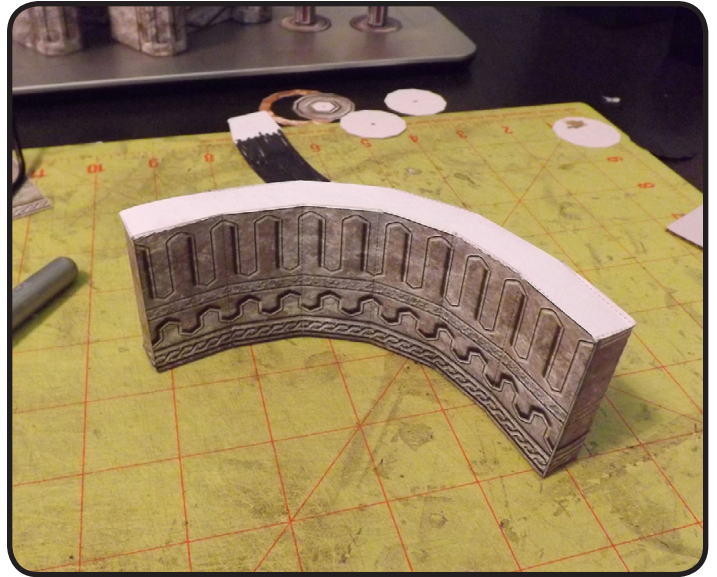

4: Glue the top piece into position.

5: It is very easy to use a scrap of paper to insert glue into tight spaces.

6: Glue the bottom piece into place.

DOORS

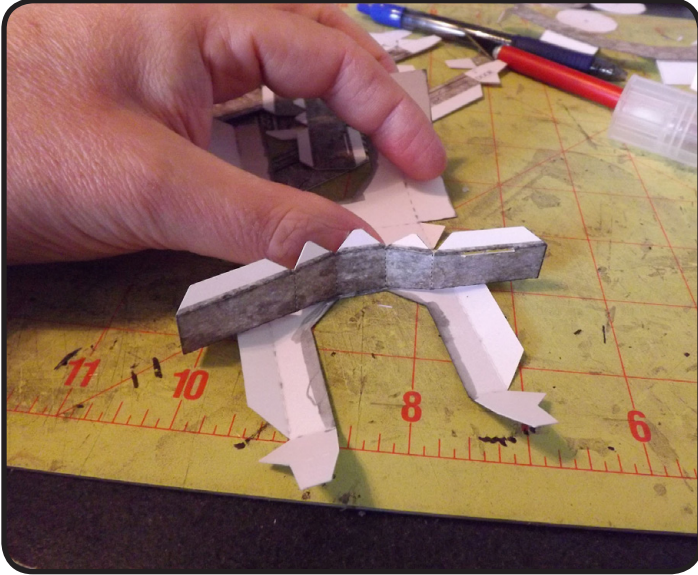

1: The doors simply fold and glue in half.

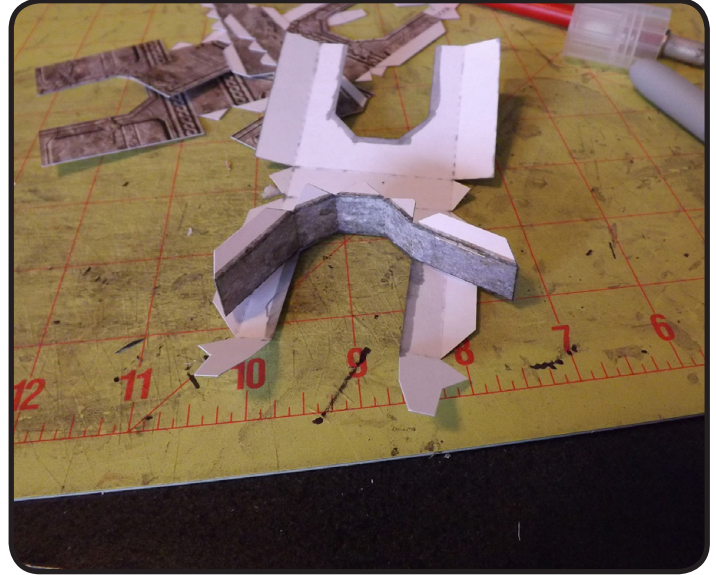

2: Cut and score the two main pieces for the doorway.

3: Glue the middle of the interior strip to the top of the door opening. Note that the interior edge of the door opening has been colored gray, just in case of any misalignment with the interior strip once glued.

4: Continue gluing the interior strip tabs.

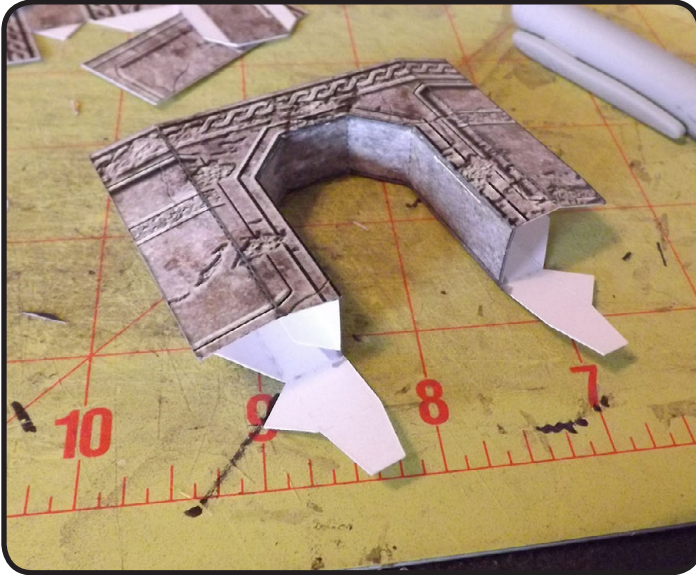

5: Finish gluing the interior strip to the inside face of the door opening.

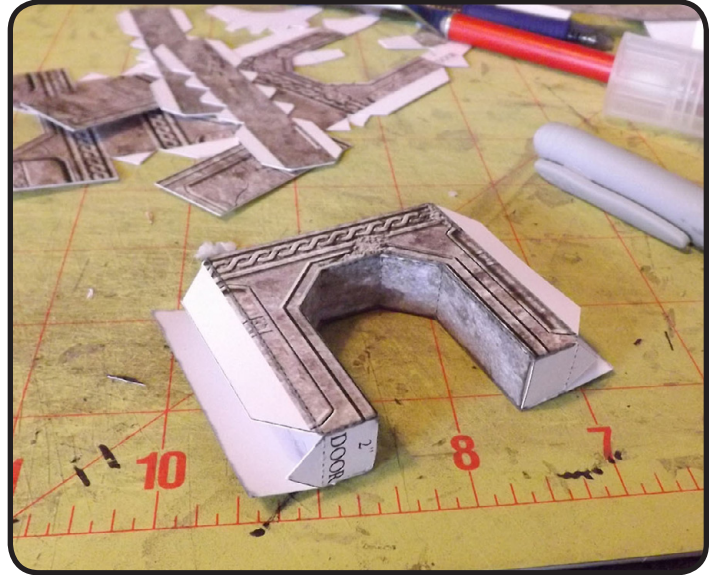

Just a quick FYI folks; I always try to keep an eye out for new glues to use and found this at Wal Mart in the scrapbooking aisle. It dries almost as soon as you apply it. The bond is as tight or tighter than any other glue I use and it has an applicator tip that is TINY- perfect for small edges and flaps! GET SOME TODAY!

6: Fold the opposite wall face over and glue to the interior strip.

7: Next glue the bottom two flaps. Finish the model by gluing the side flaps into place. The doors can be inserted into the slot on the interior edge.

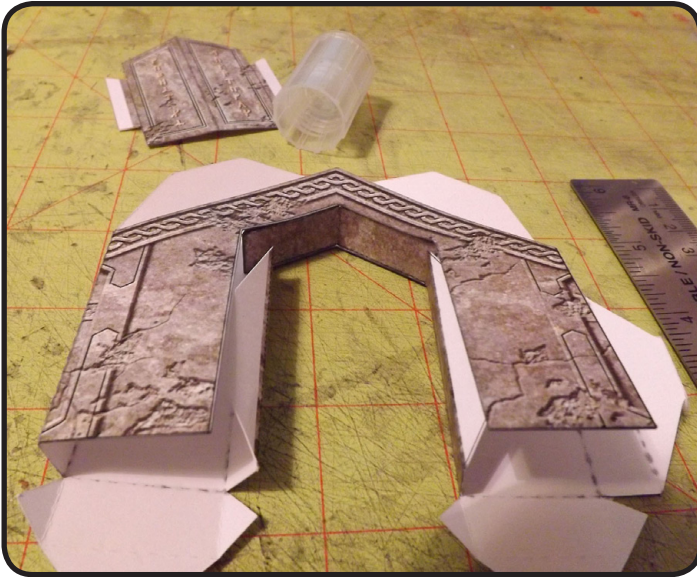

8: Cut and score the pieces for the large door.

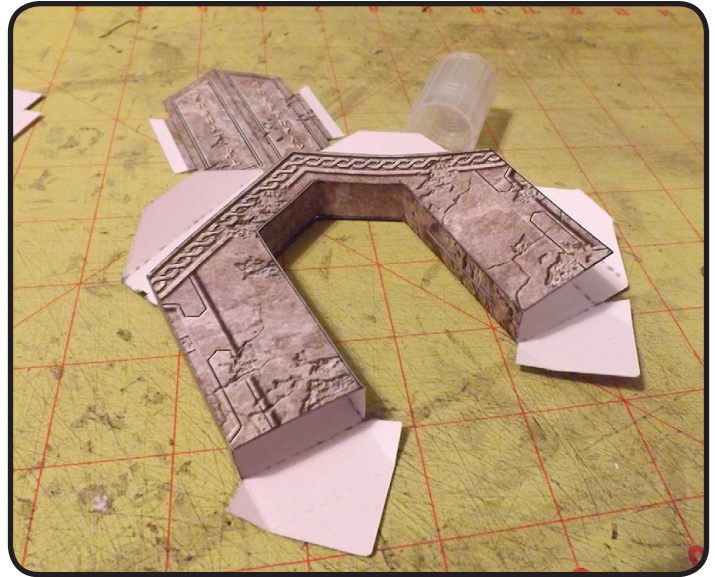

9: Begin by gluing the small top piece for the interior edge as depicted above.

10: Fold the other side over and glue to the tabs in the upper interior edge peak.

11: Now glue the two side tabs of the interior edges to the front side face.

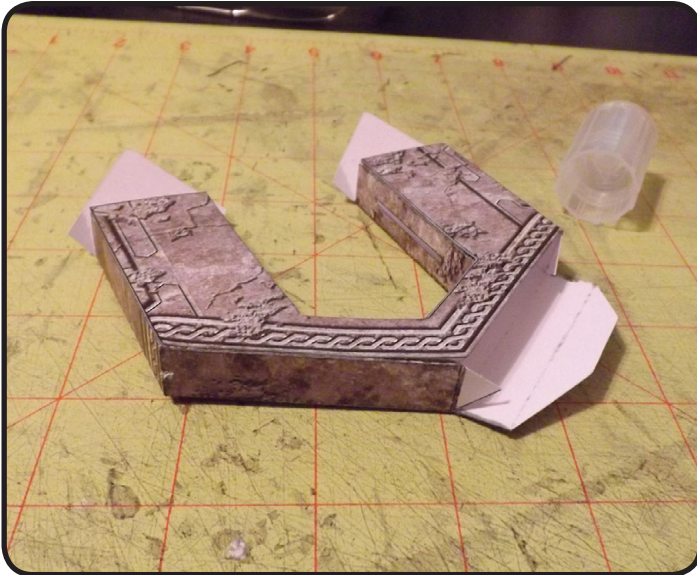

12: Fold the door pieces in half and glue.

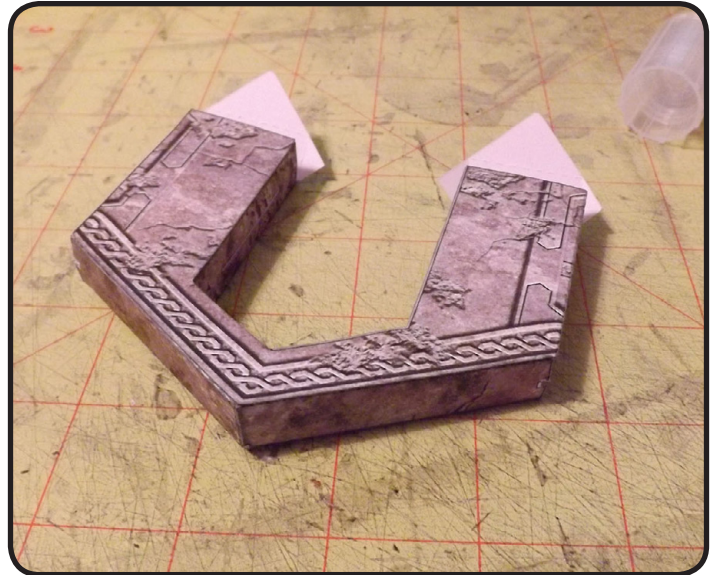

13: Glue the outer side flap in place.

14: Glue the top flap that has the triangular tab at the peak first.

15: Next glue the remaining top flap into place.

16: Finish by gluing the bottom two flaps into place.
