

Traveller. [TRAV-uh-ler, TRAV-ler]. –noun. [Origin circa 1300, from the Middle English, travaillour, with connotations of toil, as in “to make a difficult journey”]. 1. One who travels, or who has traveled, or who will travel, as to distant places. 2. An adventurer. 3. The game of science-fiction adventure in the far future.

Deraabelar. [der-AAB-el-ur, de-RAAB-e-lur]. –noun. [Origin circa -2200, loan word from the Anglic, but with connotations of distance because of its similarity to the Vilani ᑕᑕᑦᑭᑭᑕᑕᑕ rabelar, far away]. 1. One who goes far away, or has gone far away and returned. 2. A rogue. 3. A popular Terran role-playing game transplanted to the worlds of the First Imperium.
