Kank Carapace Breastplate.

You recovered this item on the strange world of Athas. Roshink, the earth noble, sent you there to learn what the world could be like if the Tamara win out. You found this armor at the base of a plant that shot needles out at you and attempted to suck all the moisture from your body.

The armor is made of a strange purple substance which you were told was from the carapace of a large insect called a kank. It has one hole in it, right over the heart. Because it is very hard and inflexible, it will only fit those with a humanoid shape (won't work for plantmen, lizardmen, lacerials, or Aarakocra).

The armor grants armor protection +6, with a check penalty of -4.

Obsidian Keen Scimitar

You recovered this item on the strange world of Athas. Roshink, the earth noble, sent you there to learn what the world could be like if the Tamara win out. You found this weapon at the base of a plant that shot needles out at you and attempted to suck all the moisture from your body.

The scimitar is extremely sharp, doubling the threat range of a normal scimitar. It is also a trifle brittle. On a natural attack roll of a 1, you must make another roll. If it is also a 1, the weapon shatters.
